The Pratt Elks Lodge #1451 hosted a Veterans Day celebration on November 4, 2025, bringing the community together to honor 38 local veterans representing every branch of the U.S. military. More than forty volunteers helped make the annual event a memorable evening.

Veterans recognized included:

U.S. Air Force: Jim Pelzl, Allan Schnittker, Steve Stelzer, Jack Veverka, and Harold Voss. Guest Air Force veterans were Pat Gordon, Carl Weese, and Charles Kizzire.

U.S. Coast Guard: Eric Killough. U.S. Marine Corps: Steve Parsons and guest veteran Wayne Doyle.

U.S. Navy: Houston Collier, Jack Crick, Dean Hoover, Ross Hoyt, Jeff Shumway, Lola Shumway, Marvin Thomas, and Jerry Frisbie.

Special guest Miss Kansas, Emily Rugg, sang a beautiful rendition of "God Bless America." The musical group Joyful Noise once again stirred the crowd with their performance of the Armed Forces Medley along with "God Bless the USA" and "The Star Spangled Banner", and Reagan Blasi delivered a moving version of "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

The program also featured guest speaker Vic Braden, who stepped in to share an informative and well-received address.

Adding a personal touch to the evening, Lonnie and Trevlyn Detmer donated a handcrafted American flag made by Lonnie himself. Guests enjoyed a beef-and-noodles dinner, with 120 people served.

The Lodge announced that its next veterans event will be a Veterans Breakfast on April 11, 2026.

Meanderings

I hadn't planned on a Meanderings column this week. I was going to write something on the page with the veterans' program, but I ended up filling it up with photos. So I guess that article what I will be writing here.

The CHS National Honor Society puts on a spectacular program every year. This year a pre-program included a question-and-answer session with about a dozen of the veterans with the CHS students as listeners and learners. NHS

President Sean Kostner asked questions of the gentlemen, and they each gave an answer. Sean began with the question of names and branches of military the men served in. He asked them where the traveled during their service time and what was the most memorable part of their service.

He also asked what the hardest part of their time in the service was. Most of the gentlemen thought boot camp was hard and taking care of and feeding their families.

He asked about jobs they had in the military and why they served. The answers were varied and interesting.

During a break after the Q&A session, the grade school classes joined us as did many of the community members.

To begin the program, John Fischer and Garrett Beat brought in the flags and NHS Vice President Jack Harden led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance followed by the Main Street Singers performing the Star Spangled Banner.

Sean Kostner gave a welcome and the 1st graders read the poem, "On Veterans' Day" by Joanna Fuchs.

A lengthy slide show presentation showed early photos of many of our local veterans, telling us about their service: listing their years of service, medals, and other information. Some photos depicted brothers who were all in the service.

After the video the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th graders sang the song "Thank You Soldiers" by Angela Souders.

Then a bit was read about the songs of the different branches of service, and veterans were asked to stand when they heard the song associated with their branch of the military.

Second graders then read a poem "Veterans' Day" by Cheryl Dyson, followed by recognition of the veterans and the widows of veterans. They were given a small token of appreciation.

To finalize the program, Kyra Morgan and Jack Harden read an essay about how to fold the U.S. flag, and Sean Kostner and Andrew Schultz demonstrated the folding. Eric Kerschen, music teacher, concluded the time by playing "Taps."

It was another great show by our high school students.

Another facet that really impressed me were the grade school kids. They were so quiet and respectful. Even the 3and 4-year-old preschool children. I didn't hear them at all during the hour we were there. I did see one youngster being escorted to the bathroom by a teacher, but otherwise, I wouldn't have known they were there. Impressive. Kudos to the teachers!

Extra thanks to Cody Dunlap and Jeree FitzSimmons who helped the students pur together this memorable honoring of our veterans.

Shout out to Lois Theis, retired Air Force Captain who reminded the young ladies in the audience, that they, too, can enlist and serve their country.

Quin. Goofy dog. Yesterday he "found" and dug up one of his soup bones, I have no idea how long it has been fermenting in the dirt, but it appeared to be just the right amount of time and fermentation because he was one happy pup.

He was so elated, he had a difficult decision when it was my supper time. Should he beg for food at the table or should be spend that time chewing on the rotten bone? I could tell he was torn. The nasty dirty bone won out.

I ate in peace.

We all know dogs are gross.... they will eat just about anything disgusting. If they don't eat it, they roll in it. Quin is the perfect example.

Dear Readers.

Wll October just kind of blew right by, didn't it? At least it did for me. Many of my trees are already bare of leaves and I guess that is October's job. The horizons at dawn and dusk are more expansive and that's nice. But I still could have used a few more weeks of kinda' warm and kinda' cool October. Because according to the local weather folks in my patch of the Land of Ahs we may see a bit of snow this Sunday. I can handle that. The first snow is always a welcome thing, as is the first rains of Spring or heat of Summer. But prolonged exposure to these elements can get tiresome.

But as I was taking a drive down the gravel roads of several counties I felt a bit guilty for lamenting the harshness of the Winter we all know is coming. Because during this drive, every few miles or so, I'd spy an abandoned homestead, roofless stone houses and massive collapsing barns built over 100 years ago. And I thought about the challenges these early Kansans faced. The weather folks also told me that the last time it snowed around me on November 8th was in 1889 and they got nine inches. And I thought how would I have coped in 1889?

And according to several sources my day would have went like this: Up at dawn, refresh the fire, make the bread and brew the coffee. Attend the livestock, feed the chickens, slop the pigs and milk the cow.

Break the ice on the pond or creek with an axe and fetch the water in wooden buckets weighing 40 pounds each. Cut more wood and salvage what if left of the garden and fields, scraping up the last of the turnips, carrots and onions. That would take me to lunch. Cold meat on hard bread and a tin cup of water. Then I'd spend the afternoon mending clothes, making candles and soap, preserving meat and stuffing fabric in all the cracks in my homey little cabin. Maybe sharpen a scythe or two.

Then its dinner time.

That's one big pot over the hearth stuffed with whatever might be in season. A venison and potato stew perhaps. Boiled chicken with leeks. And since most people just went to bed when it got dark I'd do the same, restoking the fire one more time and lying on my rope pallet bed, cuddling beneath the quilt it took me all Summer to make. And I'd lie there, safe and snug, the sleet pelting the windows, the wind howling outside and shaking the shingles, knowing I was safe and warm for one more night. Maybe browse through the Montgomery Ward catalogue by candlelight...

Considering all that our forebearers went through I'll take a little snow this Sunday. Heck, I'll take nine inches. I'll set the thermostat at 68 degrees (that would be sweltering for a homesteader). I'll fill one big pot on the stove with chicken and dumplings. And I will curl up beneath the quilt my great grandmother made sometime around 1889.

Until next week-keep your eyes on the stars and your back to the wind.

Kathleen

If you happened to sit in the bus seat directly behind her, she blotted out the sun. Other school bus drivers gave out misconduct slips to rowdy students, but she put high school boys in headlocks and dragged them into the principal's office. Students learned very quickly that there were only two options, address her as Miss Kathleen or keep their mouths shut.

If you knew Benjamin, Benny to his friends, you knew an obnoxious 9-year-old who enjoyed picking on first graders, whining his way out of home chores, and practical jokes. Benny was the guy who put whoopee cushions on teachers' chairs and even snuck in the girls' restroom once to spread glue on the toilet seats. He thought the screams and tears were hilarious, but for some reason, the principal took a dimmer view. Later, as he bounced along on the bus ride home, a sullen Benny listened to his friend, Alex, asking about his punishment.

"Yeah, the principal went on and on about accepting responsibility for my actions. Yak, yak, yak. Blah, blah, blah. Who cares? The only time I listened was when he got to the part about recess."

"Is it true, no recess for two weeks?" asked

"Sorta."

"What do you mean, sorta?"

"No recess is the easy part," replied Benny. When the rest of you guys go out for recess, I have to go to the cafeteria and clean all the lunch tables, then get a mop and mop under the tables. Do you know how much gross stuff is under those tables?"

"Sure, I do," Alex cheerfully replied. "Liam picks his nose and then throws the boogers on the floor. Max goes through his hamburger and flicks off all the pickles and lettuce, and you know what happens when Avery laughs too hard. That milk coming out her nose has to go somewhere!"

"Oh, shut up," growled Benny. He didn't understand why people couldn't take a joke. He was the victim here. "You just wait. I'll show them. I'll, I'll . . ." He paused as a devious grin slid across his face. "Just wait until the bus ride tomorrow night."

Alex didn't know if he should be shocked or amazed or both. "You're going to pull a practical joke on Kathleen's bus? Are you nuts? Nobody does that!"

"Well, I'm not nobody. Listen to this," he said as he leaned over and whispered in Alex's ear. "I'm going to pretend I'm sick and have to throw up. I'll get her to stop the bus and let me off, then I'll gag and moan and cry for help until she gets off the bus and tries to help me. That's when I'll spin around her, jump on the bus and lock her out. I'll stop the whole bus, and she'll look so dumb! Man, it will be great, and I know just what to mix up tonight."

Still thinking it was a great idea the next evening on the bus ride home, Benny opened his jacket and pulled out a small plastic bag. "Hey, Alex, look at this. I mixed up oatmeal and milk, so it looks like puke."

"You can't fool Kathleen. You'll get in trouble."

"From that old lady? Ha! What's she going to do? Take away my recess? Watch!"

Benny moaned and groaned. "I'm goin' to be sick! Let me off, please, or I'll throw up on the seats. Quick! Hurry!"

The bus slowed as the yellow warning lights blinked on, and the stop sign swung out. Benny winked at Alex as he hurried down the bus steps, ran to the ditch and dribbled the contents of the bag in front of him as he faked gagged. He really tried hard not to laugh as the bus door swished open and Kathleen started to step out.

As expected, Kathleen started to walk up behind him. What he didn't expect was the beefy hand bending his head down and his rear up. A quick glance back showed a large, booted foot swinging backward, and then lashing forward as his butt experienced an uplifting experience. After all, Kathleen was just trying to help him understand the concept of accepting responsibility for his actions.

Poetry from Daily Life: When words hint at something out of reach

By Jo Van Arkel My guest this week on Poetry from Daily Life is Jo Van Arkel, who lives in Springfield, Missouri. Professor Van Arkel is a Teaching Fellow in Writing, Department of Languages and Literature, at Drury University. She started writing poems and stories when she was a child, inspired by the many books

she checked out from her local library. She likes to write both poetry and fiction and is currently at work on a novella in flash about life in the Ozark Mountains. She has a letterpress studio where she makes prints and etchings that sometimes illustrate her words. ~ David L. Harrison

For me, the desire to write came early. It might sound strange, but I fell in love with words — not only their meanings, but the sound of them, the feel of them in my mouth when spoken aloud. I love the way they bump up against one another in a sentence, the gait of language, the way we create rhythms when we talk.

These rhythms are like heartbeats in a sentence. But beyond sound and structure, I've always been drawn to the way words can do something even more marvelous: they can catch a moment and hold it still. They can express sorrow. They can tell a story. And sometimes - when we're lucky — they can reach toward something that can't be easily explained. The ineffable. Many poems I admire manage this trick: they glimpse what's just out of reach, then gesture toward it.

The poem below is my attempt to describe what it feels like to write in this way — to sit quietly, listening, trying to catch what just slipped past. It's written in quick tercets — three-line stanzas that move lightly across the page. The quiet scratch of the nib anticipates an ending where something disappears before we quite know what we saw.

> Wordsmiths They sit on high stools in back rooms only the sound of nibs on paper the scent of inky fingers for comfort and Scribble and Scratch to catch what's already around the corner of the next room a mouse of a moment that just slipped past without being noticed.

When Worship Goes Wrong: Finding Our Way Back to the True God

In the rural hills of eastern Kenya where I grew up, Sunday mornings were sacred. Long before sunrise, families would walk miles through dusty roads, balancing stools, hymnbooks, and sometimes jugs of water. People came to church not for comfort, but for communion, with God and one another. They washed their feet outside, dusted off their shoes, and entered the sanctuary with songs that filled the air: "Mungu ni mwema — God is good!"

Those memories still speak deeply to me. They remind me that true worship is not about perfect music or polished programs. It's about hearts that long for God. It's about a people who gather, not because life is easy, but because they know they can't face it alone.

But across the world, and even here in small-town America; something has quietly changed. Many people have drifted away from worship. Life has gotten busier. Sundays have become fuller. Faith, for some, has become one option among many. And so I find myself asking, both as a pastor and a neighbor:

When was the last time you attended a worship service, not out of habit, but out of hunger?

When was the last time you felt refreshed and centered after being in church?

When was the last time your heart was stirred to remember that God is still near, still real, and still calling your name?

These questions are not meant to guilt anyone, but to invite us to think about what truly gives our lives meaning. In today's world, worship competes with many powerful forces:

The idol of success tells us we are only as valuable as our achievements. The idol of comfort urges us to choose what is easy over what is right. The idol of technology keeps us endlessly scrolling but rarely still.

The idol of fear whispers that God's promises are not enough. And the idol of self teaches us to place our desires above God's design. When worship goes wrong, life begins to lose its center. But the good news is this: God continues to call His joyful, and life-giving.

If you've been away from church for a while,

this might be the perfect time to come home. Bring your questions, your struggles, your hopes,

and your heart. Come people back; to a place of rest, renewal, and relationship. The prophet Elijah once stood before a weary nation and asked, "How long will you hobble back and forth between two opinions? If the Lord is God, follow Him!" (1 Kings 18:21, CEB). That question still echoes today.

This month, our congregations at Cunningham United Methodist Church and Penalosa United Methodist Church are exploring a two-part sermon series titled:

"When Worship Goes Wrong: Finding Our Way Back to the True God."

Together we'll reflect on how our worship can drift; and how it can be restored to something pure, Sundays at 10:45 a.m. Come rediscover the peace of worshiping with your neighbors, the joy of singing familiar hymns, and the strength of being part of a caring community.

In an age of noise, worship helps us listen. In a time of hurry, worship helps us slow down.

Mr. Arensdorf submitted a quote on the 2024 tractor that was given back at the end of the lease and to purchase it could be 5.5% financing and said that he could trade in a 2007 tractor to put towards the purchase of the tractor.

Mr. Arensdorf let the Commissioners know that he has scheduled a December 15 letting for Hot Mix Overlay.

Mr. Arensdorf discussed two-off bridge system bridges that will have field checks on by KDOT in February or March of 2026.

MOTION: Commissioner Thimesch moved to adjourn the regular board meeting at 11:49 a.m. Commissioner Young seconded the motion. The motion was approved with a 3-0 vote.

Minutes from Pratt County Commission

The Pratt County Commissioners met in regular session Monday, October, 27 2025 at 2:00 pm in the Commissioner Room, 1st floor of the Courthouse. The following members were present: Thomas W. Jones III, Rick Shriver, Morgan Trinkle, Cescha Hoffman, County Clerk and Mark Graber, IT Director.

Economic Development Update -Heather Morgan

A joint House and Senate Commerce committee meeting is discussing the alignment of economic development incentives at the state and local level. Heather said she will be putting the incentive information for our county in once DJ, County Appraiser, gets her the data.

Sawyer Gasline Project

The KCC sent an email asking if Sawyer had renewed their SAMS's number, the status of the SAM's number is being checked. A copy of the contract from KGS has not yet been received.

Public Comments

Micha Nelson, audience member, requested the county look into the condition of NW 10th. She expressed concern that it is high traffic and the road has deteriorated over the last few years and road graders can't keep up on it. She asked if a survey could be done to see how much traffic and why could be done to find a solution. Gyp rock that was previously put in place did help. Commissioners asked for their patience while they work on putting in a crown and getting gyp rock. Blake Himmelwright also was present and expressed concern for the same road. Commissioners said they would work on coming up with a solution.

Horizons Mental Health Center Quarterly Update

Vikki Madder with Horizons Mental Health Center gave a quarterly update. At the end of fiscal year 2025, the agency saw an increase in client numbers reaching close to 400. They have increased staff and expanded the building, which has allowed them to see more clients. Mental Health First Aid training is available for groups and students and is offered at no cost. Vikki reported they had to make a significant audit adjustment related to a duplicated billing issue. Despite the adjustment the agency ended the fiscal year with a positive $% operating margin of 1.2 million.

Environmental KDHE Update

Jon Roach, reported the KDHE issues are currently being resolved. He also requested to hire a part time employee for the summer intern position. He received an applicant and would like to start the process of training and obtaining a license. The commissioners agreed and requested Jon bring in a salary adjustment form.

Clerk's Comments

Cescha Hoffman, County Clerk, proposed to implement a Provisional Board. The Provisional Board would be responsible for opening, handcounting, and tallying provisional ballots after the Commissioner approve or deny them based on recommendations and KSA Statutes. This would relieve the Commissioners, who serve as the Canvass Board from the physical counting task. The Clerk will consult with Tyson regarding the potential change.

Courthouse Maintenance Update M&M Cleaning

Service
Maria and Marcus presented services they provide. Some of their existing clients are Pratt Family Practice, Pratt County Health Department and BTI. They requested information so a bid could be submitted next year when the bid process begins.

Courthouse Repairs

A list of needed repairs, created by employees, was presented to the Commissioners. Commissioners will review repairs and address them.

Concrete & Yard Quotes

Several Quotes were received to repair the concrete and yard. The quotes were not comparable so the Vendors will be contacted to submit new quotes.

ew quotes. KDOLAudit Update

Commissioner Jones signed the KDOL Audit on the items that have been fixed in the Courthouse. Forklift training for the Landfill and Road Departments still needs addressed.

Road Department
Update & Personnel

Request

Motion to hire Patrick Hock for Road Department mechanic at $18/hr made by Commissioner Trinkle; seconded by Commissioner Shrivier; motion carried 3-0.

Doug Freund reported a culvert was damaged due to solar farm activity. Kirkham Michael has drawn up replacement plans. The road use agreement will be reviewed, and Tyson will be consulted for guidance. Doug also reported the Overlay Project is complete, finishing one day over the allotted 10 days. The commissioner suggested not applying liquidated damages for the one-day delay, acknowledging the work was done and weather issues. Doug also would like the public to know the water is shut off at the lake.

Zoning Update

BJ Hayes, notified

the Commissioners the Public Hearing for zoning is set for November 17th at 6:00 p.m. at the Public Safety Building. He also reported the weather station is still on back order. He will call the company to resolve the issue.

Executive Session -Zoning

Motion to move to executive session to discuss Zoning with BJ Hayes for 10 minutes at 3:00 p.m. made by Commissioner Shriver; seconded by Commissioner Trinkle; motion carried 3-0.

Commissioners came out of executive session at 3:10 p.m. with no action taken.

1970

November 12, 1970 - Press-time last week caught us with all the votes not counted. It appeared at Wednesday mid-day that the liquor amendment would be approved. It wasn't. The amendment was voted down by around 12,000 votes, with 95 of Kansas' 105 counties voted "dry".

Trying to figure the voter would drive you crazy. Governor Robert Docking, a Democrat, was elected to an unprecedented third term. Who's the Lieut. Governor? Republican "Ren" Shultz. The Republicans also were elected to all other major stated offices except Attorney General, to which Vern Miller was elected-the first Democrat in that office in the state's history. Editor Bill Bradley Fourteen students of the Spanish Department of Cunningham High School took part in the sixth annual "Concurse de capacitacion para estudiantes de espanel," a contest designed for second, third, and fourth year Spanish, held at Wichita State University, October 31. Approximately 650 students from 65 schools of Kansas participated in the 13 competition areas.

Peggy Park received an "Honors" rating, the highest given, for her recitation of a Spanish poem. Peggy also received a I rating for her conversation with a native speaker, and a II rating for her sight reading of a prose passage. Ruby Parsons and Suzanne Steffen each received a rating of I on their recitation of Spanish Poetry. Suzanne also received a rating of II on her conversation with a native speaker. Elaine Starr received a II rating for her poetry recitation. Mark Dafforn received a rating of I on his extemporaneous speech in Spanish on "Women's Liberation," and a II rating for his conversation with a native speaker.

Men of the Cunningham Christian Church completed a remodeling project of the church-yard and grounds last week.

A new cable fence has been erected; new sidewalk laid, and the hedgerow was removed.

The church-yard has been further enhanced by the addition of a new church sign-bulletin board, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crosley and family.

November 13, 1975 – A December 20 wedding is planned by Carolyn Witt and Frank Briscoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Briscoe, Columbia, Missouri. Announcing their daughter's engagement are Mr.

and Mrs. E. E. Witt, Cunningham.

The bride-elect attended Pratt Community College and is serving as coordinator of the Human Resources Department with Pizza Hut International, Wichita.

Briscoe, who received his education from the University of Missouri, is a chemist in the Quality Control Department of the same company.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Mantooth of Cunningham announce the engagement of their daughter, Cynthia Ann, to Mr. Kent E. Anthony, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Anthony of Medicine Lodge.

Miss Mantooth attended Pratt Community Junior College and is now a senior at Northwestern Oklahoma State University at Alva, where she is majoring in vocal music education. She is presently practice teaching in the Medicine Lodge School system.

Mr. Anthony graduated from Pratt Community Junior College and Northwestern Oklahoma State University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration. He is the County Assessor for Commanche County at Coldwater, Kansas.

A spring wedding is being planned.

Dana Jo was the name chosen for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Seiwert, Colwich, born at 6:59 a.m., Thursday, November 6, at Wesley Medical Center. She weighed 7 pounds, 8 ounces. Mrs. Seiwert is the former Linda Kampling.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kampling, Cunningham and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Seiwert, Kingman. Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stillwell, Sr., Cunningham, and Mrs. Frances Kampling, Kingman.

The junior of Cunningham High School will present a three-act play "Moonlight and Applesauce" on Tuesday, November 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium. The play is filled with loads of laughs, wacky situations, and juicy parts.

The characters include: Eli Barnes, a mild-mannered inventor, portrayed by Bryan Stucky; Ellen Barnes, an investment-minded wife, played by Terri Simonson; Grandmother Barnes, old but wise and wise-cracking, accented by LuAnn Jones; Kay Barnes, a young woman with a mind of her won, acted by Natasha Armstrong; Nita Barnes, a sharp-tempered edition of her younger sister, represented by Paula Parks.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Martin of Larned, are in Cunningham periodically working on their new home in the northwest part of town.

1985

November 14, 1985 – The Cunningham Christian Church has built a large addition to the south of the present building. It is two stories high and includes classrooms, bathrooms, and other necessities. Bob McGovney was hired to oversee and do most of the work on the building with the help of some of the church members who wished to donate their time and labor for the project. The outside is completely finished and the interior is rapidly being completed.

Cunningham is prospering! Just across the street from one another, two building projects are being completed as of now. The Hi-Way Café, owned by Bob and Yvonne Thimesch, has been completely rebuilt, from the kitchen to the front door and all of the outside. It appears to be just about twice the size the original café used to be. Thimesch rebuilt part of the kitchen about eight months ago and just recently opened for the pheasant season on Friday evening with an almost finished interior.

The new dining area is spacious and will accommodate several more booths or tables and chairs. Sunday noon, about fifty customers were seated and several more were waiting in line for their meals. Go on in and enjoy the new surroundings and the same good food.

Several members of the local Cub Scout Pack 759 met at the Depot Museum recently in order to plant a tree directly north of the building. The youngsters are hoping the tree will continue to grow and they can proudly point it out to others in future years as their contribution to the continuance of the museum. The Scouts helping were Cory Depenbusch, Mark Evans, Jeremy Lynch, Jonathan Miller, Aryn Raney, Neil Campbell, Eric Webster, Randy Ormiston, Matthew Evans, Patrick Lynch, Jeremy Jarmer, Tim Rohr, and Aaron Murphy.

The Girl Who Knew Too Much

"Kilgallen was the greatest female writer in the world."

Ernest Hemingway

Few people today know the name of one of the most remarkable Americans ever to live. She was an intrepid journalist, gifted writer, and popular TV personality. The New York Post once described her as "the most powerful female voice in America." As a fearless crime reporter, she was involved in many highprofile investigations, including the famous Sam Sheppard murder trial and the JFK assassination. In November of 1965, she died mysteriously, but authorities refused to investigate. Her name was Dorothy Kilgallen.

Dorothy Kilgallen was born in Chicago on July 3, 1913. Her family moved to New York City in 1920, and she grew up in Brooklyn. After graduating high school, she briefly attended New Rochelle College but dropped out at the age of 17 to become a crime reporter.

In September of 1936, while working for the New York Evening Journal, she convinced her editors to send her on a "Race Around the World" - competing against reporters from two other newspapers. Dorothy was just 23 years old. She had two days to get her passport and 16 Visas. Off and running, she traveled by plane, dirigible, train, and ship, reporting on her adventures from such places as Germany, Manila, Hong Kong, and Hawaii. The trip took her 24 days, and she came in second place. When she returned home, every house on her block was decorated with her picture and an American flag. First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt even wrote to congratulate her. Dorothy later published a memoir of her trip entitled Girl Around the World.

Ever the hardworking journalist, in 1938 Dorothy launched a newspaper column, the Voice of Broadway, for the New York Journal-American. In it she documented the shenanigans of the social elite, and more. Her writing style was a mixture of juicy gossip, dark politics, and crime, peppered with odd tidbits of trivial and fun information. Dorothy cruised New York night-spots like Delmonico's and the Copacabana, picking up story tips, writing them on match-books and napkins, and tossing them in her purse. By 1950, Dorothy's column was running in 146 newspapers earning 20 million readers. Not everyone though was enamored with her take on the celebrity world. Dishing dirt sometimes brought her enemies. Frank Sinatra was one of them. In a running feud with Dorothy, he often referred to her as the "chinless wonder." She responded by writing about his ties to organized crime and the mob.

In 1950, along with her column and a morning live radio program, Dorothy became a regular panelist on the new game show What's My Line?

The show was broadcast live from New York on Sunday nights and had the panelists interview contestants with unusual occupations, with contestants winning $5 for every "no" answer. Dorothy was intelligent, quick witted, and fun, more often than not correctly guessing her way through the game. During this time, Dorothy became a celebrity herself, often outshining the stars she wrote about. But writing was her gift.

Dorothy's father, James Kilgallen, a journalist himself recalled "she had an unerring instinct for news. She had a brilliant style of writing. She was accurate and had a flair for the apt phrase. She had an uncanny ability to produce scoops and an inordinate speed in turning out copy." And readers devoured what she wrote.

In her column on August 3, 1962, Dorothy broke the story of President Kennedy and Marilyn Monroe's romantic relationship. She didn't directly identify Kennedy, but readers were able to read between the lines. One day later, Marilyn Monroe was found dead in her Los Angeles home – under suspicious circumstances.

On November 22, 1963, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, and life for America changed forever. Dorothy was devasted, having met the President weeks earlier on a White House visit with her young son. And as a crime reporter, she started asking questions. Contacts within the Dallas Police Department began feeding her information. Dorothy was soon convinced that the assassination was a conspiracy, with many involved. Things got western after the man arrested for the crime, Lee Harvey Oswald, was gunned down on live TV by nightclub owner Jack Ruby. Dorothy soon obtained and published the transcript of Ruby's testimony before the Warren Commission tasked with investigating the crime. The FBI interrogated Dorothy in an effort to discover her source. She informed the FBI that she "would rather die than reveal his identity."

reveal his identity."

Dorothy later interviewed Jack Ruby (she was the only reporter to do so) and began carrying a file of documents with her at all times – believed to be material she was compiling for a book. She told friends that she was "going to break this case." She believed it would be the biggest scoop of the century.

On the evening of November 7, 1965, Dorothy made her last appearance on What's My Line? She was later spotted in the bar at the Regency Hotel having drinks with a mystery man, and then leaving the bar at about 2 a.m.

Monday morning, November 8, 1965, Dorothy had an appointment with her hairdresser Marc Sinclaire. Sinclaire arrived at her Manhattan townhouse at approximately 8:45 a.m. He found her dead.

Dorothy was found by her hairdresser in a bedroom she never slept in, dressed in clothes she would never wear to bed, with makeup, hairpiece, and false eyelashes still on, reading a book she had finished and disliked, without her reading glasses, with the lights on and A/C running full blast in the cold of November. Eight days after her death, the New York City Medical Examiners report, signed by a doctor who claimed he was never there and didn't sign it, stated that Dorothy died of "acute barbiturate and alcohol intoxication - circumstances undetermined." Her death was never investigated by the authorities.

The file carrying all of Dorothy's JFK papers has never been found.

Full Steam Ahead

Kim Baldwin, McPherson County farmer and rancher

After a stop-and-go start to fall harvest because of weather and breakdowns, we've finally found our groove in November.

The wheat is now in the ground; the cattle have been sent off to winter pasture and the clear and sunny days have allowed us to keep the combines in the fields.

While we are still a month behind schedule when it comes to harvest, it feels good to know the grain is finally coming out of the fields at a steady pace.

Driving by the area elevators, it is clear that everyone has dropped everything to get back into the fields as well. Trucks are lined up to deliver the harvest.

We're seeing nice yields that are occasionally making our full combines and grain cart stop in the field while we wait on the trucks to return from the elevators only to unload on them again for another trip back to the elevator.

Our truck drivers are constantly on the go right now. So much so that one of our truckers normally brings a book with him to read while he waits for his trailer to get filled with grain before making another trip to the elevator. For now, he'd be better off listening to an audiobook as there's not much down time.

As I was driving the kids home from school this week, the air was full of harvest dust. Dust from the trucks traveling the dirt roads. Dust being kicked out of the backs of the combines. Dust from the grain being transferred from a grain cart into a trailer.

Within a two-mile stretch of my drive, it seemed like there was at least one combine harvesting on every section in sight.

The harvest dust filled the air. Add that with the earlier sunsets that have been brought on by the time change and the atmosphere illustrated fall productivity at its finest. It was beautiful.

Yes, it looks and feels like fall harvest now. We are thankful for the consecutive days of clear weather and fully operating machines.

It's my hope that these days continue and we can get as much grain harvested before the next stopping point.

In any case, harvest is happening now. We've caught our groove and we're moving grain.

It's definitely full steam ahead.

Kay Beat

Kay Ann Beat, 80, died Nov. 9, 2025 in Mountain Home, Arkansas.

She was born July 25, 1945, in Kingman, Kansas, the daughter of Virgil McPheeters and Bernice "Marie" Blank McPheeters. A longtime Kingman resident, she was a homemaker and retired receptionist at Donley Clinic and the secretary at St. Patrick's Grade School.

Kay was a member of the St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Kingman and St. Peter the Fisherman in Mountain Home, Arkansas.

On Oct. 12, 1963, she married Joseph "Joe" Beat in Kingman. Other survivors include three sons Brian Beat, Mark Beat and Greg Beat and his wife Tammy; daughter Dana Moore and husband Win; grandchildren Brandon (Meredith) Beat, Cassandra (Josh) Forcum, Jennipher Beat (Seth Adelhardt), Amber (Sam) Clouse, Tyler (Krystal) Beat, Wyatt (Lauren) Beat, Bryanna (Kyle) Bontrager, Win (Maddie) Moore, Erin (Riley) Galloway, Davis Moore, Olivia (Eric) Newman and Laykin Moore. She was preceded in death by her parents; step-father Don Egan; and brother Verlin "Mac" McPheeters.

Parish rosary will be 10:00 a.m., Friday, Nov. 14, 2025 at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Kingman followed by the Mass of Christian Burial. The family will receive friends from 5:00 to 7:00 on Thursday, Nov. 13, 2025 at Livingston Funeral Home, Kingman. Burial will be in the Walnut Hill Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to St. Patrick's Grade School and sent in care of Livingston Funeral Home, 1830 N. Main, Kingman, KS 67068.

KCHS Pets Ready for Adoption

Bear

Sponsored by The Cunningham Courier

Look at that face! I'm thinking "Bear" is a misnomer, if ever there was one. But he's no doubt just resting up. He knows adventures await and he has plenty of energy and intelligence for anything you throw at him.

Bear is a four-year-old Yellow Labrador/German Shepherd mix. He weighs about 55 pounds. He's been at the shelter since September 25 and really would like a home with a family for the holidays.

He is good with other dogs, house-trained, loves people and can be adopted for $180.00.

> Thank You Note RATES Use the Courier to say "Thank You". $.10 per word ($6.00 minimum)

Harper

Sponsored by Baker Accounting

This is Miss Harper's 2nd appearance in The Courier. She was brought to the shelter the first of May with a passel of kittens, all raised now, and Harper needs a home. She has a very sweet face, and I don't doubt she's have a sweet disposition with just the right person who will pamper her. She's about 2 years old, so she's probably outgrown the kitten rambunctiousness. Her adoption fee is $40.00. Not much for a lifetime companion.

Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, from 8:00 - 5:30 (except during lunch 12-1) on Wed., from 8:00 - 12:00 Call for Saturday hours.

1015 East U.S. 54, Kingman, KS
